Length of Walk: Reasonably short; 30 – 40 minutes for a quick wander around castle

Parking: Might have been free, cannot recall.

Date Walked: 31/07/2008

Pop in to: Farm shop on way to castle.

Description: You park up and then walk through a farm to the castle. There is a shop on the right as you go up. You pay the castle entry fee here. Dogs must be on lead through farm; pictures of dog-attacked farm animals appear on a sign in car park to push the message home. Castle is on a bit of hill, so there is a climb to it, but interesting enough once there, and worth a visit. This castle also has an interesting secret passage way cum cave inside it so bring torches as the cave goes for some distance inside.

Pictures taken on 31/07/2008:

Short uphill walk to the castle ruin, again free for dogs to roam around.

In good weather you would have some excellent views; castles tend to be built to make the most of the view.

This castle has a cave / tunnel that goes a surprisingly long way. You will need torches for this cave and while you can hire or buy torches at the farm shop below the castle, you could probably bring your own far brighter torch which would do the cave justice.

Descending into the cave / tunnel below the castle. Outside it was a rainy and misty day so the views were not as they would be on a sunnier day.

be kept on a lead through the farm and on the approach to the castle due to a fair few sheep around.
